

San Francisco Area Health Education Center (AHEC) Scholars

NOW RECRUITING FOR STUDENTS WHO ARE ENROLLED IN ELIGIBLE HEALTH PROFESSIONAL MAJORS.

Eligible Health Professional Majors

- Certified Nursing Assistant
- Masters of Social Work
- Community Health Worker
- Community Mental Health
- Dentistry
- Health Education Specialist
- Medical Assistant
- Medical School (MD, DO)
- Nursing (LVN, RN)
- Physician Assistant
- Psychology
- Public Health

San Francisco AHEC Scholars are health professional students who want to supplement their education by partnering with Community Health Centers to improve the health of underserved San Francisco residents.

The San Francisco AHEC Scholars in Community Health Program provides a 2-year interdisciplinary curriculum designed for students currently enrolled in a health professions degree or certificate program and at least two years from program or degree completion. A one-year option is available for community health workers and medical assistants.

Program Components

1. Community-Oriented Web-based Training
2. Clinical/Public Health Training provides professional exposure for scholars through team-based volunteer work at an SFCCC member clinic or another approved site.
3. Community-Based Health Project is a collaborative effort with an SFCCC Community Health Clinic or other approved site to target and address a specific community health need.

Past Projects

- Patient Diabetes Education and Support Program: Group and individual counseling for patients living with diabetes or pre-diabetes.
- Researching and creating COVID-19 vaccine marketing materials
- Anti-Racist Medicine: Examining the need to replace race-based medicine with social determinants of health in foundational medical education.

To LEARN more about our program and past projects please visit our Website or contact Beau Sanchez bsanchez@sfccc.org

Follow us on  to see the latest happenings

